

Relationships Australia Intercountry Adoptee and Family Support Service (ICAFSS) Small Grants and Bursaries Program Guidelines for Applicants July 2023 Round

The Small Grants and Bursaries (SGB) Program is a component of the national Intercountry Adoptee and Family Support Service (ICAFSS) provided by Relationships Australia organisations led by Relationships Australia South Australia (RASA). ICAFSS was redesigned in 2021, and now includes three components: Therapeutic Care, Community Capacity Building and Small Grants and Bursaries (SGB). ICAFSS is funded by the Department of Social Services, and the SGB budget allocation is $50,000 (nationally) per financial year. The SGB program is overseen by the SGB Reference Group.

Applications for this grant round must be received by the 4 August 2023. Please send applications to icafss@rasa.org.au.

How much SGB Program funding can I apply for?

The maximum amount payable for Grants will be $5,000 per application and the maximum amount payable for Bursaries will be $500 per application. However, the SGB Reference Group acknowledges that there may be exceptional circumstances that warrant the funding of Small Grants and Bursaries outside of these limits. We invite anyone who requires funds that are in excess of these amounts, to contact us prior to submitting an application to discuss this.

Purpose

The purpose of the SGB Program is to support and address the needs of the intercountry adoption community in ways that may not be possible through the Therapeutic Care or Community Capacity Building components of the service.

The SGB Program is intended to support adoptees and adoptive families to connect with others with shared experiences, support the development of community based initiatives and to support adoptees through small contributions to costs associated with their adoption (bursaries).

The primary focus of the SGB Program is to fund Grants directed to projects and activities that enable peer groups or intercountry adoptee and family support community organisations to build connection and support. Bursaries are a secondary element that are approved in exceptional circumstances to assist individual adoptees only with a small contribution toward the cost of practical items.

From November 2021 to March 2022, the SGB Reference Group conducted a community and stakeholder consultation to identify the primary needs, gaps and priorities that could be addressed by the SGB Program. Through that consultation, the following broad categories of activities were identified as priorities for small grants:

- Activities, events, workshops and projects for and by the intercountry adoption community including networking, peer support and mentorship activities.
- Development of resources authored by those with lived experience of intercountry adoption.
- supporting adoptive parents as well as adoptees (and adoptees across all stages of the life course).
- Promoting cultural connection (language, culture, cooking, etc) through workshops, etc.

SGB Assessment Panel

An SGB Assessment Panel approved by the SGB Reference Group will assess SGB applications and make recommendations to RASA for decision on the awarding of SGB funds.

The SGB Assessment Panel will comprise representatives of the SGB Reference Group, state and territory ICAFSS providers and Networks of InterCountry Adoption Lived Experience (NICALE) members as appropriate.
